Producer

Anselmo Mendes is recognised not only for the excellence of the wines he produces but also for the surprising and consistent way he innovates. Combining the use of age-old techniques, such as fermentation on skins, with bold winemaking methods such as the fermentation of Alvarinho in oak casks, he is established in Portugal and abroad with an original design and his own identity.

Tasting Notes

"Complex nose, hay, cinnamon, along with spicy and mineral aromas. On the palate, slight herbaceous along with a mineral component typical from the variety. Great structure with a fresh acidity along with a large, evolving and long end."

Winemaking

White wine made from grapes of Alvarinho variety produced exclusively in Monção and Melgaço. The vines are more than 14 years old and have low production with high levels of acidity and good maturation
