La Báscula

Producer

La Báscula — “the weighing scales” — is the collaboration between Hispanophile Master of Wine Ed Adams and Bruce Jack, built on balance between Old World insight and New World instinct. The wines prioritise proportion, place and drinkability over excess.

Tasting Notes

Atlantic Way takes its name from the maritime pilgrim trail to Santiago de Compostela that runs just past the cellar front door. Delicious lime and mineral character. Crisp, fresh with a lime, mineral and slightly saline quality but with good mouthfeel. Excellent, clean finish.

Viticulture

Produced from 80 hectares of vineyards in the Salnès Valley, a sub-area of the Rias Baixas, only 4 kilometres from the Atlantic Ocean. The cimate is heavily influenced by the nearby sea with well distributed rain, mild temperatures all year round and minimal temperature oscillations. The summers tend to be warm and bright helping with the ripening of the predominant Albariño grape. The vines are trained on pergolas, helping to maximise the light interception. The soils are shallow and composed of granite sands.

Winemaking

A percentage aged in French and American oak Pergola trained and picked into small boxes before fermentation in stainless steel. Extended contact with the fine lees in tank for up to 5 months before bottling. None of the wine goes through malolactic ferementation - our producer believes this detracts from the essence of Albariño

Awards

2022 is the new vintage. The 2021 was included in the Wines From Spain top 100 presided over by Tim Atkin MW
