A company born from a chat over a pint in 2001. Kym Teusner and Mick Page, overheard a couple of grape growers talking about grubbing up their 85 year old Grenache vines. The guys stepped up and offered the growers four times what they'd be paid for the crop before. This stance is the cornerstone of their business, treating growers with the respect they deserve. Kym and Mick make the kind of wines they like to drink, we liked them too when we visited back in 2016. The wines are full of character, edged with the old vine complexities that we love. It's exciting, after so many years of keeping in touch with progress at the winery that we finally have the wines in Ireland.

Tasting Notes

This old vine Semillon has all the concentration and intensity that one expects from the fruit grown on a vineyard of this nature. This aged release shows youthful lemon curd, lime juice and fresh cut straw on the nose, intermingled with fresh butter and biscuit like aromatics. The textural undercurrent provides structure for the palate as the wine ages and is framed by the mineral like acidity which gives the wine length and a crisp finish.

Winemaking

Sourced from 85 year old vines on the Eastern edge of the Barossa Valley near Angaston.
