REPORT & OFFER

BAROLO 'ANTEPRIMA' 2021 VINTAGE

2021 has benefitted from perfectly timed weather events throughout the year yielding wines that are expressive yet hold promise for long ageing in the perfectly formed virile tannins.

Is this the new norm?

Wines that can be enjoyed immediately or cellared for the long term. Chablis is seeing the same trend, elevated terroir expressions even in the tank. Precocious times, seemingly playing to our impatient generation.

But this is Barolo, and Nebbiolo is never that straightforward. It seeks to drive intrigue and exploration. The journey of the 21s is not mapped out. There will be peaks and troughs in terms of expression and poise.

The tighter tannic drive and more sober edge to the fruit does however suggest that these wines are here for the long term. Poised and precise this shows all the signs of another top vintage, comparable to the near perfect 16s.

Growing year - 2021:

The preceding winter was mild, there was rain and even some snow to fill up the water table for the coming season. Some precocious buds in Monvigliero and La Morra suffered with April frosts, losing up to 40% in unlucky vineyards.

Potential yields, measured by fruit on the vine were down about 10% on 2020 removing the need to green harvest for most. The summer was warm with no excessive heat spikes. Low rainfall was supplemented by the healthy water table. Grapes flourished with the uncomplicated growing conditions.

Autumn arrived mid September when cooler nights widened the diurnal range following a short spell of rain. The naturally sluggish ripening of the all important phenolics embraced this gentle change in seasons and ripened beautifully.

Picking pushed into the first week of October, later than recent vintages.

2021 is a vintage offering producers the opportunity to make top class age worthy wines.

It seems the Barolista are on a roll!

BAROLO

G.B. BURLOTTO
VERDUNO

A 12ha estate run by Fabio Alessandria the great-grandson of Giovanni Battista Burlotto. Having studied oenology at Turin University Fabio spent several harvests gaining experience outside Italy coming back to the estate in 1999. Fabio uses French oak barriques ranging from 4 to 34 years old, he believes the finer grain gives his wine a tension and sheen that Slavonian oak can't achieve. Burlotto produce some of the most sought after wines in Barolo.
